

Security Training and Awareness Materials: Mich's Grab Bag

*Mich Kabay
Norwich University*

Abstract

The Web site at <http://www2.norwich.edu/mkabay> has over 3,000 files to support information assurance (IA) awareness, training and education efforts. These materials are freely available for non-commercial use such as internal training in any governmental or non-governmental organization. Materials include PowerPoint presentations that are part of university courses in IA, white papers that can serve as introductions to various aspects of IA for students or managers, booklets for young people and teachers on safe use of the Internet, and materials specifically aimed at developing ethical decision-making in the use of information technology. The INFOSEC Year in Review database provides several thousand abstracts and references to specific IA topics with keyword and category search capabilities for instructors and other IA professions to use in developing their courseware and documents. This presentation serves as a guided tour of the site by its author.